

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image processing apparatus creates additional image data representative of an additional image describing the reproduction contents for spot colors of a printed image in an output device for outputting a proof image and outputs proof image data representative of the proof image and the additional image data. Confirmation of the additional image outputted from the output device makes it possible to discriminate the reproduction method of the spot colors of the proof image.